Germans Leaped to Death Over The Heaps of Dead at Verdun

Sixteen Waves of Them Beat Back Before the Seventeenth Took One French Position—But Their Courage is Still Good—Tired of War, But Believe They Can Hold What They Have.

This is the second of a series of articles on the greatest battle the world has known. Herbert Cory, the distinguished correspondent, whose articles are appearing exclusively in the morning edition of The Bulletin, was in the first party of newspapermen taken out by the French government. He was permitted to overlook the scene for days under the guidance of an officer. During all this time he was under fire or hiding behind walls with the soldiers. These articles will appear from day to day.

By HERBERT CORY.

BACK OF VERDUN, May 1.—Four days ago the German army was striking at Verdun. In that time it has won a great strategic advantage. The German losses have been estimated at $20,000. Those at Verdun who are in a position to know something of the war say that this estimate is greatly exaggerated.

Hearing these stories in aid, I asked the man in the German army today: "I saw?"

"I saw," said the French officers with whom I discussed this question.

I am sorry to say that I was surprised by the answer. The French and British press have made a great noise of the "loss of moral" experienced by the Germans than for some recent successes and the frightful losses which they have suffered. The French at Verdun, I was once prepared to hear that the "Punis" is beginning to waver. The German army, however, is still overruling the confidence he felt in his strength when he first came here. "Do not misunderstand," his statement concluded, "I have seen many men accompanied it. The German is getting frightfully tired of the war."

The German is getting frightened. The French officers are getting tired.

He feels now that he can never get to Paris or Calais. In the first months of the war he believed that he would eventually he would win through. Now he only believes that he can never win through. The French and British allies are forced to make peace. Even the British are at the breaking point.

He is along the line in every army and does his duty it is to gather information about the enemy. They are not ignorant of perception, who usually half believe what they see and half imagine what the odd things between the enemy and the enemy hardly ever happen. The Germans are captured are taken before they are shot.

"Sometimes they talk when they are given a cigar," said one officer.

Change in Germany.

The German officer has talked more freely. After that he has been measured. In either case he felt himself immediately inferior to the French. He had suffered an unnumbered number of injuries, but was not met by any virtue of his antagonists. Sometimes he gave up his life because of this spiritual attitude.

The intelligence officer was the unannounced victim of the intelligentsia. They are becoming very human. They do not boast or strut or talk about their success.

Most of them say very candidly that they are not beaten, but that they are weary and many of them and they are weary even though they were even though they were getting kicked.

The intelligence officers have always stressed the courage with which the Germans fought. The British and French have exacted desperate charges in mass at Verdun. The Germans have been sent forward before the men were even prepared to fight.

The German is getting tired of the French position. The charging men then leaded over the men in the trench and engaged over the men held in the trench and stamped doggedly no longer caring where they thrust their steel.

The German is getting tired. He does not seem seriously affected as yet. The German is getting tired of the obvious to refuse full credit to him. His spirit is going down, little by little." The intelligence officers say.

The letters found on the dead and wounded in the German trenches, home, back in Germany, tell poignant stories of the sufferings and privations of the German soldier. The short of food and of clothing and of everything else that is necessary to life worth living. There is hardly a better writer who does not pray for the German soldier.

The German is getting tired. The men who write are equally sick of it. For the German is getting tired.

UNIVERSITY TEAM MADE STRONG FINISH, GIVING ONE-FIVE-ONE BOYS FIRST DEFEAT OF SEASON

Most Exciting Game of Military Baseball League to Date Resulted in Victory for South Side Soldiers — 19th Boys Couldn't Solve McAllister's Slow Curves at First, But When They Did, They Murdered Them.

LEAGUE STANDING	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20	21	22	23

It seemed like old times last night down at the ball park when the men of the 13th Battalion, who have been running around the city ever since the war began, were back again to witness the rooting at the ball game between the 13th Battalion and the 15th Battalion. The 13th Battalion had been away from the city for two days when the Eskimos were engaged in their first game against the Calgary Bronchos. Such rooting as last night has been heard in the past may never be heard in the near future if any more such exciting games as this are to be expected of the University of Alberta contingent or the One-Five-One contingent of the game.

The two battalions will represent the grand stand and the rosters of each side had plenty of opportunity to show that there is any crowd of people in the world who can cheer more wildly than a man who has just won a ball game.

The crowd—led by hitting, several errors and a big fat hand rally in the 10th inning—was behind the 15th, which won the game.

McAllister, the pitcher, and the opposing slamen, the former for the 15th and the latter for the 13th.

The One-Five-One boys took to McNabb's fast offering in the first part of the game, but found it hard to adjust before the 19th when a single hit by the 13th was all that was needed.

The One-Five-One got two in the first and two in the second, while the 13th got one in the sixth, the 15th in the eighth, and the other two runs, one in the sixth and the other in the eighth, were due to Spence's error.

On the other hand, McAllister had the best of the game, getting vengeance on the low wide curve ball and not until the fourth did they fail to get a run across. With one hit, he scored 12 runs.

LEADERSHIP in books and stationery in Edmonton has by common consent been conferred on,

THE DOUGLAS COMPANY, LTD., 1003 Jasper Ave.

It's a new book just off the press, this is the place to get it. In fact, there is nothing in the line of stationery or books, periodicals or kindred lines which cannot be obtained at this store with more satisfaction than any place in the city.

THREE is one furniture house "Par Excellence" in the Edmonton district—in the whole of Northern Alberta, in fact—a house which instantly comes to mind when furniture buying or furniture values are under discussion. That store is,

BLOWEY-HENRY, LTD., 9905 Jasper Ave.

This store has contributed to the pleasure of the majority of Edmonton homes by supplying dependable, artistic furnishings.

THE PHONOLA, that wonderful musical instrument—Made-in-Canada, with the qualifying pipes, the greatest advance in tone reproduction since the beginning of the industry—this machine is sold exclusively in Edmonton by,

THE MASTERS PIANO CO., 10324 Jasper Ave.

Mrs. A. L. Phillips, Suite 2 Quebec Bank Building, is the winner of the $1000 prize, here's how she got it. She entered in a drawing of the box and if she will call at The Bulletin office we shall be pleased to hand her the $10. There were four others who had hers absolutely correct—Misses Jessie R. E. Miller, 19233 104th Ave.; A. M. Dixon, 3545 102nd Ave.; L. Langford, in care Alberta Pacific Grain Co., and G. L. Gould, City Treasurer's Department, and the majority of the other lots only had one or two of the firms wrong.

Smoke thoroughly, tobacco smoke or stems. This should prove effective.

Enquiries re Hydro Electric.

To the Bulletin: Could you furnish me some information concerning the company that has a franchise for the Edmonto hydro-electric power plant?

When will they begin to build the railroad to this place, also what material will be used, and what is the cost supposed to cost: what is the time limit for completion?

How much power do they expect to get from this water power when completed?

The agreement between the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Alberta and the city of Edmonton reads that the company will be on or before January 1st, 1917, with the necessary equipment and the necessary works for the carrying out of the contract, and will commence to lay way from a point at or near the City of Edmonton; to that part of the power development which will be put into operation and expend the following sums:

The amount to be expended during the coming into force of this agreement will be $1,000,000, and during the next two years approximately $2,000,000, during the subsequent five years $1,000,000, and the balance required to complete the work.

When the power plant is completed by January 1st, 1924, it will have constructed a hydro-electric power development having a capacity of 25,000,000 kilowatts per annum during each year of the first five years.

To Tan Skins.

To the Bulletin: How are squirrel, skunk and other furbearers skinned?

Cut off the useless parts and soften the skins by soaking in warm water. Then lay them flat on a board, turn the skin inside out, then soak the skins in tepid water with a mixture of one part borax, saltpeter and Glusine salts (sulphate of soda), about one-third of an ounce to each pound of skin. Add water to make a thin paste. Spread the skin, applying more to the thicker parts than on the thinner. Double the skin twice, then lay it flat and turn it place in a cool place. After standing for twenty-four hours, wash the skin and apply the following mixture in the same way as before: One ounce saltpeter, one ounce borax, one-half ounce hard white soap, melted slowly to a thin paste, add to the water and stir together again and put in warm place for twelve hours. After this dissolve three ounces sulphate of soda in half one and one-half ounces saltpeter in water and add to the skin. Turn the skin inside out and lay it flat and turn it place in a cool place. When cool enough not to melt the skin, wash the skin again for twelve hours; when dry, wash the skin again. When dry repeat the soaking and salting process until the skin is sufficiently soft. Last, smooth the inside with fine sandpaper and pumice stone.
